

Sinclair Broadcasting plans to force all stations into airing a clearly biased political program shortly before the election is abuse of power. This is a clear demonstration of the dangers of too much media controlled by one entity. Surely this outright bid to sway public opinion by using the public airways in such a manner is not held to the intention of licensing by the FCC. The public will lose all respect in the ability of your agency to maintain fairness and impartiality in the public airwaves, and will consider your licensing requirements null and void when it comes to corporate influence. At the very least, the opposition should be guaranteed equal air time to advance their agenda, although I would prefer the Sinclair group be prohibited from using their holdings to advance their political agenda. I hope the FCC will not bow to political pressures and will do their duty by the American public. Thank you
Virginia Wasserman